Karnataka Cabinet clears revised SC internal reservation formula

Decision allocates quota among sub-groups following legal and policy review

BENGALURU

In a significant policy move, the Karnataka Cabinet on Friday approved a revised formula for internal reservation within the Scheduled Castes (SC) category, allocating 5.25% each to groups 'A' and 'B', and 4.50% to group 'C'.

The decision was taken at a special Cabinet meeting chaired by CM Siddaramaiah, following deliberations on legal constraints and recommendations by expert committees. The move comes amid ongoing debates over equitable distribution of reservation benefits among sub-castes.

Addressing the media, the CM said the classification divides SC communities into three groups—A (Right), B (Left), and C (Shiva)—within the overall 17% quota. However, due to the 50% cap on total reservation mandated by courts, the effective internal allocation has been adjusted within a 15% framework.

The earlier formula of 6:6:5 has now been withdrawn, and a fresh notification reflecting the revised 5.25:5.25:4.50 distribution will be issued. Siddaramaiah noted that the revision follows a Supreme Court ruling permitting internal reservation and subsequent recommendations by a commission headed by Justice Nagamohan Das.

He added that around 6% reservation will be treated as backlog and addressed after the High Court delivers its final ruling on the overall reservation ceiling.

The Cabinet also decided that nearly 20% of posts within Category 'C' will be earmarked for nomadic communities, ensuring targeted benefits to the most marginalised sections.

KEY HIGHLIGHTS:

- 20% of Category C posts reserved for nomadic communities
- 6% treated as backlog (pending court decision)
- Applies to upcoming 56,432 government recruitments
- Previous ratio (6:6:5) withdrawn

"We have taken this decision unanimously to ensure fair and equitable distribution of reservation among all SC sub-groups. Our government's commitment is that no community should face injustice, and opportunities must reach the most deserving."

—Siddaramaiah, Chief Minister

'TMC goons won't find hiding place, end of jungle raj': PM

KOLKATA

PM Modi said high turnout showed desire for change, strong faith in democracy, despite alleged intimidation attempts by ruling party.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday intensified his attack on the ruling Trinamool Congress (TMC), warning that party "goons" would have no place to hide after the May 4 election results, as he cited record voter turnout as evidence of an impending political shift.

Addressing a rally at Dum Dum ahead of the next phase of polling, Modi said the unprecedented participation in the first phase of the West Bengal Assembly elections had already signalled the end of what he termed "jungle raj" in the state.

He claimed that the high turnout reflected people's desire for change and reaffirmed public faith in democracy. The Prime Minister also alleged that the ruling party had resorted to intimidation tactics but said such efforts would not deter voters.

Modi further stated that a BJP government would prioritise justice, law and order, and welfare measures for the middle class.

He highlighted economic steps taken by the Centre, including raising the income tax exemption limit, to ease the burden on citizens.

Congratulating voters in West Bengal and Tamil Nadu, the Prime Minister said the massive turnout marked a decisive moment in the electoral process, indicating what he described as a strong wave in favour of change.

"After the results on May 4, the TMC's goons will find no place to hide. The files on every injustice will be opened—this is Modi's guarantee."

Samrat Choudhary-led NDA proves majority with voice vote in House

NDA government wins trust vote in Bihar Assembly

PATNA

The NDA government led by Samrat Choudhary secured a decisive victory in the Bihar Assembly on Friday, winning the trust vote through a voice vote. The ruling alliance, backed by 202 legislators in the 243-member House, demonstrated a commanding majority, reaffirming its political strength.

Assembly Speaker Prem Kumar congratulated the government following the passage of the confidence motion. The development comes amid heightened political exchanges between the treasury benches and the Opposition.

During the debate, Choudhary strongly countered remarks by Leader of Opposition Tejashwi Prasad Yadav, rejecting claims about his political origins.

He asserted that leadership is earned through struggle and experience, not inherited privilege. Reflecting on his early career, he recalled his association with Lalu Prasad Yadav and said adversity shaped his journey into politics.

Choudhary also acknowledged the role of Nitish Kumar in his elevation, stating that his leadership continues to guide the state's development vision.

He emphasised the NDA's commitment to governance, highlighting priorities such as farmers' welfare, women's empowerment, and curbing corruption, crime, and extremism.

Deputy Chief Minister Vijay Kumar Sinha reiterated that the government would function under Nitish Kumar's guidance, despite his shift to the Rajya Sabha, and ensure continuity in policy implementation.

The Opposition, however, questioned the necessity of the special session, arguing that earlier clarity on leadership could have avoided the exercise.

DK Shivakumar urges Centre to relax height norms near defence airfields

NEW DELHI

Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar has urged Union Defence Minister Rajnath Singh to ease building height restrictions around defence airfields in Bengaluru, citing their impact on the city's rapid urban development.

During a meeting in New Delhi, Shivakumar submitted a memorandum highlighting that stringent norms imposed by defence authorities while granting No Objection Certificates (NOCs) are hindering infrastructure growth within a 20-km radius of airfields such as HAL Airport and Yelahanka Air Base.

He noted that under existing rules, building heights are capped at 150 metres within a 15-km radius.

However, defence authorities have extended these restrictions up to 20 km, limiting development in key urban zones where demand for real estate and infrastructure is high.

Shivakumar emphasised that Bengaluru, one of the fastest-growing cities globally, requires a balanced approach that ensures both aviation safety and urban expansion. He urged the Centre to review the guidelines and restrict the 150-metre cap strictly within 15 km.

CEC REMOVAL BID

Opposition submits fresh notice to remove CEC

NEW DELHI

The Opposition on Friday submitted a fresh notice seeking the removal of Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar, marking the second such attempt in Parliament within a short span.

The notice has been signed by 73 Rajya Sabha MPs belonging to 11 Opposition parties, including senior leaders like Congress MP Jairam Ramesh and TMC MP Sagarika Ghosh. The move reportedly includes nine fresh charges against the CEC, expanding on earlier allegations raised in a previous notice.

Earlier, a similar notice had been submitted by 193 MPs from both Houses, raising seven charges.

However, that attempt did not move forward procedurally.

The current notice is yet to include a formal submission in the Lok Sabha, indicating that the Opposition has not finalised a joint filing strategy across both Houses.

Under constitutional provisions, the removal of the Chief Election Commissioner follows the same process as that of a Supreme Court judge. Article 324(5) ensures that the CEC cannot be removed except on grounds and procedures similar to impeachment.

Once admissible in both Houses, an inquiry committee is constituted jointly by the Speaker of the Lok Sabha and the Chairman of the Rajya Sabha under the Judges (Inquiry) Act, 1968.

KEY PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS

- Minimum 50 MPs required in Rajya Sabha notice
- Minimum 100 MPs required in Lok Sabha notice
- Motion must be admitted in both Houses
- Joint inquiry committee formed after admission
- CEC removal follows Supreme Court judge-like process

11 elevated corridors planned to ease Bengaluru's traffic congestion

State plans major elevated corridors to tackle Bengaluru's growing traffic crisis

BENGALURU

In a major push to address Bengaluru's worsening traffic congestion, the Karnataka government has drawn up an ambitious plan to construct 11 elevated corridors across key bottlenecks in the city. The project aims to provide a long-term and sustainable solution to traffic woes in India's tech capital.The proposed corridors, spanning a total length of 75.60 km, are estimated to cost ₹13,262 crore. Of this, ₹7,150 crore will be funded directly by the government, while the remaining amount will be executed under the hybrid annuity model. Additionally, ₹2,072 crore has been earmarked for land acquisition. The project will be implemented by Bangalore Smart Infrastructure Limited and will cover five municipal corporation limits within the city. The corridors are strategically planned to decongest some of the busiest and most traffic-prone stretches.

Key proposals include a slit flyover at MEI Junction on Tumkur Road, a grade separator linking Pipeline Road to Outer Ring Road via Mahalaxmi Layout, and a major elevated corridor connecting Minerva Circle, Hudson Circle, KR Circle and Town Hall.

Other crucial routes include Kanakapura Road near Raghuvanahalli Cross and an elevated stretch from Doddaballapura Road Police Station Junction to Kogilu Circle. Additional corridors are planned at Konanakunte Cross and from Yeshwantpur-Mattikere to Old Madras Road via IISc and Mekhri Circle. A major east-west link will connect Old Madras Road to Electronic City via Indiranagar, Old Airport Road, Hosur Road and Silk Board Junction—one of the city's most congested zones.

Further, elevated corridors from Sirsi Circle to Nayandahalli and Talaghattapura to Kanakapura Main Road are expected to ease traffic flow in south and west Bengaluru.

Officials believe the project will significantly reduce travel time, improve connectivity and boost productivity. However, challenges such as land acquisition, environmental concerns and execution timelines remain critical factors in determining its success.

Single digital platform to streamline complaints, services for BESCOM high-tension users

BENGALURU

Karnataka Energy Minister KJ George on Friday launched 'HT Mitra', a dedicated service request and grievance redressal portal for high-tension (HT) electricity consumers under BESCOM.

The portal, developed by BESCOM engineers, aims to provide a transparent, efficient and user-friendly system for over 18,000 HT customers, including industries, IT/BT firms and commercial establishments. It enables users to register complaints, request services and track their status in real time—features that were previously unavailable through traditional channels like the 1912 helpline or in-person visits.

Additional Chief Secretary (Energy) Gaurav Gupta noted that the platform would enhance ease of doing business by offering timely and transparent solutions to high-load consumers. BESCOM Managing Director N Sivashankar added that the system would improve accountability, as officials can monitor actions taken on each complaint.

The portal also integrates automated SMS alerts to keep users informed at every stage, ensuring continuous communication between customers and officials.

DELAYS DOG SPICEJET, BENGALURU-KOLKATA FLIGHT GROUNDED FOR HOURS

BENGALURU

Fresh disruption unfolded at Kempegowda International Airport after SpiceJet flight SG768 from Bengaluru to Kolkata was delayed for several hours due to a technical snag, adding to growing passenger complaints over repeated delays and poor communication.

Passengers said the flight, originally scheduled to depart around 2 pm, remained grounded even past 10 pm, with no clear updates from the airline. Travellers alleged they were left waiting at the boarding gate with minimal staff presence and inadequate assistance.Anupam Mitra, one of the passengers, said the delay began with a brief announcement but gradually stretched into hours without resolution. He also claimed that despite the prolonged wait and ticket costs exceeding ₹10,000, no refund or proper support was provided. Airport officials later attributed the delay to aircraft maintenance issues. However, passengers expressed frustration over the lack of transparency and communication from airline staff throughout the ordeal.The incident adds to a series of recent complaints against the airline. On April 22, a passenger alleged a 26-hour delay on flight SG269 and claimed he was made to pay ₹5,250 at the airport under what he described as an unclear policy. On the same day, another flight was delayed by nearly four hours, causing disruption to onward travel plans and triggering protests by passengers at the airport.Frequent delays have raised concerns among travellers over operational reliability and customer service standards, with many demanding stricter accountability and better communication protocols from the airline.

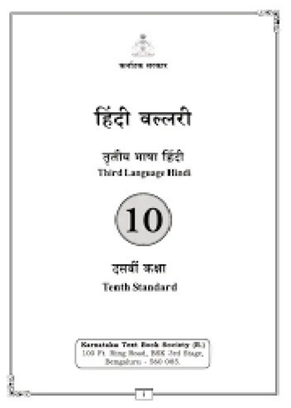
Amid Karnataka's rethink on Hindi, SSLC students score better than ever

BENGALURU

Amid ongoing policy discussions in Karnataka over the role of Hindi in school education and a proposed shift to a grading system instead of marks for the subject in SSLC (Class 10) exams, the 2026 results have shown a sharp and unexpected rise in performance.According to data released by School Education and Literacy Minister Madhu Bangarappa, the pass percentage in Hindi has jumped significantly to 98.6% in 2026, compared to 87.5% in 2025. The improvement of over 11 percentage points has drawn attention from both policymakers and education experts.

Out of more than 7 lakh students who appeared for Hindi, around 6.9 lakh cleared the subject this year. In contrast, nearly 75,000 students had failed in 2025, but this number has now dropped sharply to about 9,000.

Officials from the Department of School Education said the improvement is visible across both urban and rural regions, with notable gains even in government schools in remote areas. They attributed the rise to improved teaching methods, structured revision programmes, and exam-focused learning support introduced over the past year.However, the results have also reignited debate over Karnataka's language policy. The state government has been considering a two-language formula and a grading system for Hindi, aimed at reducing academic pressure and addressing concerns about linguistic imbalance.While some educationists see the results as evidence of better learning outcomes, pro-Kannada groups argue that the numbers do not resolve the broader policy concerns. They maintain that the debate over "linguistic imposition" continues despite improved pass rates.



Nitin Gadkari promised to repair Hosur Road by April-end: Kiran Mazumdar Shaw

BENGALURU

BIOCON Chairperson Kiran Mazumdar-Shaw has said that Union Minister for Road Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari assured her that the heavily congested Hosur Road stretch in Hebbagodi will be restored to better condition by the end of April.

Mazumdar-Shaw said she raised concerns about the poor condition of National Highway 44 earlier this month through a post on X, describing the stretch as badly designed and poorly maintained. She also highlighted the lack of response to repeated complaints about daily traffic snarls affecting commuters and industry employees in the region.Following her post, the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) responded stating that the road, completed in 2010, now carries far higher traffic volumes due to rapid urban expansion around Bengaluru's industrial corridors.Shaw later met Gadkari, who she said acknowledged the poor condition of the highway and assured swift action. "He was very helpful. He said he was upset that the national highway was in such bad shape and promised to improve it," she said on the sidelines of the STAMP (Nudging Commuter Behaviour) event.

Tents and solo travellers, a safety check in focus

BENGALURU

The reported sexual assault on a US citizen has brought renewed attention to safety risks faced by solo travellers staying in tents, which often lack internal locking mechanisms. The incident has raised concerns among adventure enthusiasts and trekkers who frequently opt for tented accommodation in homestays, resorts, and trekking camps across Karnataka.

Experts say tents, while popular for outdoor experiences, come with inherent security vulnerabilities. Depending on their design, altitude use, and material, tents may not offer adequate protection against intrusion.

"There are different kinds of tents, but the most important aspect is proper ventilation and ensuring safety awareness. At the same time, one must also be alert to potential dangers outside," said S Srivatsa, Secretary of the Karnataka Mountaineering Association (KMA).He stressed that personal security must be treated as a priority. "A tent is like a personal home. No one should enter without consent," he added, urging travellers to be cautious, especially in homestays or private estates where canvas tents are provided.

ROAD WORK STALLED

Revised PWD bitumen rates fall short of market surge

BENGALURU

Road development across Bengaluru has taken a major hit as revised bitumen rates by the Public Works Department (PWD) fail to match soaring market prices, forcing contractors to halt work on a large scale.PWD revised bitumen rates earlier this month after prices breached the 10% variation threshold. However, contractors say the updated rates remain significantly lower than actual market rates, making projects financially unviable. As a result, officials from the Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) estimate that over 90% of asphalting works in the city have come to a standstill.Contractors point to a sharp spike in bitumen prices—from around ₹45,000 per tonne earlier to nearly ₹80,000 per tonne now—driven by supply disruptions from major refining hubs such as Mangaluru and Maharashtra. They argue that even the revised PWD rates do not reflect this steep increase.GM Nandakumar, President of the Greater Bengaluru City Corporation Contractors' Association, questioned the feasibility of continuing work under current rates, stating that contractors are incurring heavy losses. He added that work would resume only after the government approves a "star rate" model, which allows payments based on prevailing market prices.The contractors' association has submitted a representation to the GBA Commissioner, seeking immediate release of differential payments under the star rate mechanism. It has also invoked the force majeure clause under Karnataka's public procurement framework, citing global disruptions, including the ongoing Iran-America conflict, as a major factor behind the unprecedented rise in input costs.

High Court stays case over misleading Griha Jyoti video

BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has stayed proceedings against a Telangana-based man accused of sharing a misleading video about the state's Griha Jyoti scheme.A single-judge bench led by Justice M Nagaprasanna passed the interim order while hearing a petition filed by Ravikant Samrat from Karimnagar, seeking to quash a case registered at East CEN police station in Bengaluru.The petitioner's counsel argued that the video featuring Energy Minister KJ George was reposted unintentionally in November 2023 and deleted within hours after inaccuracies were identified.BESCOM officials contended that the video falsely suggested a power shortage under the Griha Jyoti scheme, a claim backed by forensic analysis. The complaint was originally filed by BESCOM General Manager CN Manjunath.Taking note that the content was promptly removed, the court stayed further proceedings until the next hearing.

Mangaluru announces water rationing from May amid demand

Mangaluru will start water rationing from May 1 amid rising demand, ensuring regulated supply across all wards

MANGALURU

Mangaluru will implement water rationing from May 1 to manage rising summer demand and ensure equitable distribution across the city, according to officials from the Mangaluru City Corporation (MCC).

Deputy Commissioner and MCC Administrator Darshan H V said there is sufficient water storage in Thumbe vented dam and AMR dam to meet drinking water needs until June 10. However, increased consumption during peak summer has necessitated regulated supply, particularly for high-demand areas such as Surathkal.

Currently, about 160 million litres per day (MLD) of water is being pumped from Thumbe dam. While pumping will continue daily, supply timings will be restricted in certain areas. The revised schedule aims to ensure all 60 wards receive water at least once every two days.

As of April 24, the water level at Thumbe stands at 4.53 metres, while AMR dam holds 18.53 metres. Officials noted that rainfall in the Western Ghats has helped maintain inflows, though no water has yet been released from AMR to Thumbe.

The administration has also identified more than 40 illegal water connections in rural areas linked to city supply, with further verification underway. While immediate disconnection has been deferred on humanitarian grounds, steps are being taken to install meters and regulate usage.

Authorities are also addressing issues such as unauthorized flex banners, drainage problems, and stormwater management ahead of the monsoon. Desilting works worth around ₹4 crore have been initiated across 32 packages to reduce flooding risks.

Officials said measures are also underway to upgrade drainage systems, complete Smart City LED streetlight installations, and improve infrastructure resilience before heavy rains begin.

The rationing plan is expected to balance urban water demand while preventing shortages during the peak summer months.

Uppara community urged to prioritise education growth

Leaders at Kadur Bhagiratha Maharshi Jayanti urged the Uppara community to prioritise education for empowerment, unity, and long-term social development

KADUR

Leaders at the Bhagiratha Maharshi Jayanti programme held at the taluk panchayat office in Kadur urged the Uppara community to give greater importance to education for social and economic development.

Speaking at the event, Uppara community district president Malnad Nagaraj said the community, known for its strong devotion and historical role in the salt trade, also participated in Mahatma Gandhi's salt satyagraha, contributing significantly to the freedom movement. He noted that despite such contributions, the community remains economically backward and must focus on education as a key path to progress.

He emphasised that greater representation and opportunities in education are essential for the upliftment of the Uppara community. Community development, he said, can be achieved only when youth actively pursue academic growth and skill development.

Kadur MLA K.S. Anand assured that special attention would be given to the development of the Uppara community. He announced that around 15 crore would be allocated for the development of villages inhabited by the community in the constituency. He said 3 crore would be provided by year-end for the construction of the Bhagiratha community hall on the outskirts of the town.

Tahsildar C.S. Purnima highlighted the importance of youth participation in such programmes to understand the ideals of great personalities like Bhagiratha Maharshi, who symbolises determination and perseverance. She stressed the need for water conservation and urged the community to focus on unity and education. Several community leaders, officials, and representatives attended the programme and shared their views on social upliftment and development initiatives.

Accept AI challenge, build skills: CS Shadakshari

SHIVAMOGGA

Artificial Intelligence (AI) technology is the biggest revolution of the modern world and is being adopted across almost all sectors, including education, said Karnataka State Government Employees' Association State President C.S. Shadakshari. He urged teacher trainees to accept the challenges of AI and achieve success through digital literacy and skill development.

He was speaking at the valedictory function of the NSS annual special camp organised by Kuvempu Centenary College of Education at Kumshe in Shivamogga taluk.

Shadakshari said AI will significantly impact employment opportunities, with traditional jobs likely to decline due to automation. However, those who upgrade their skills and knowledge in line with new technology will be able to overcome challenges effectively and create self-employment opportunities instead of depending solely on government or private jobs.

He stressed that this is not an era where money alone defines success. It is a time that values knowledge, ideas, planning, and innovation. Individuals who can apply science, technology, and intelligence effectively will find greater recognition and opportunities.

He also noted that many D.Ed colleges in the state have already closed over time, and warned that B.Ed institutions could face similar challenges as AI transforms the education sector. However, he advised students not to panic but to build their future with intelligence and adaptability.

Highlighting the role of NSS, he said students must develop academic knowledge along with life skills, problem-solving ability, discipline, patriotism, and social responsibility. He added that NSS plays a crucial role in shaping responsible citizens.

Several dignitaries, including college officials and NSS coordinators, attended the programme.

Chitradurga DC meeting focused on drought relief, urgent drinking water supply, borewells, and 24/7 disaster response cells

Urgent water crisis meeting held in Chitradurga district

CHITRADURGA

District Disaster Management meeting was held in Chitradurga under the chairmanship of District Collector T. Venkatesh where urgent steps were directed to solve drinking water problems in drought-hit areas of the district. MLA T. Raghumurthy said officials must respond quickly in villages facing drinking water shortage and ensure supply without delay. He said water supply works under Jal Jeevan Mission should be completed and overhead tanks filled immediately so that rural people do not suffer during summer. MLA BG Govindappa suggested renting private borewells in Hosadurga taluk to supply water to affected villages and warned against poor coordination in distribution. MLA KC Virendra Pappi said water should be supplied to nearby areas of Chitradurga city and urged private management of RO plants for better maintenance. Collector Venkatesh said disaster management cells should function 24 hours in all taluk offices with helplines for public complaints and faster response systems. He said priority must be given to drinking water security and advance planning for summer, noting that 15 areas already face shortage and 69 villages may be affected. Officials informed that RO plants are being repaired, borewells drilled and tanker use reduced compared to previous drought years, ensuring better preparedness this year. Authorities also reviewed crop damage caused by hailstorm, especially in Hiriyur taluk, and said compensation will be directly credited to farmers' accounts. Officials from various departments including agriculture, horticulture, and rural development attended the meeting and discussed long-term solutions for water and fodder availability. District officials said coordination between departments is being strengthened to ensure timely response during disaster situations. They stressed using private borewells, repairing infrastructure and improving monitoring systems to prevent water crisis escalation.

FAKE PRODUCTS WARNING

Consumer awareness key to social change movement

KALABURAGI

Change in society is possible when consumers become aware of their rights and act responsibly, said Malathi Reshmi, in-charge president of the District Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, on Friday. She was speaking at the World Consumer Rights Day programme organised by the Food, Civil Supplies and Consumer Affairs Department along with the Consumer Commission at Aiwan-e-Shahi Guest House in Kalaburagi.

She said that consumers should not remain only buyers but should understand quality, safety and legal rights. Awareness can protect people from harmful and fake products in the market. She warned that adulterated food items are increasing and can seriously affect public health.Malathi Reshmi suggested that people should prefer clean and safe food. She also encouraged families to start small oil production units using groundnut or safflower seeds with government support, which can help in getting pure food at home and create self-employment opportunities.She explained that the Consumer Protection Act 2019 has strengthened consumer rights and provides simple ways to solve complaints through mediation without going to court. She added that people can also take legal action in cases of medical negligence or unfair trade practices.Advocate Vaijnath Jhalki, who spoke at the event, said that consumers must know both their rights and duties. Even small unfair practices should not be ignored. An aware consumer helps build a fair society.Participants also raised concern about lack of proper laboratory facilities in Kalaburagi, which makes testing food quality difficult. Officials and consumer groups attended the programme and discussed ways to improve awareness and safety for all citizens.

The programme concluded with a call for stronger consumer awareness initiatives

Gehlot criticises Rajasthan govt over delay in conducting local body polls

Jaipur

Senior Congress leader and former Rajasthan Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot extended greetings on National Panchayati Raj Day while raising concerns over delays in local body elections in the state. Ashok Gehlot conveyed his wishes to citizens on the occasion of National Panchayati Raj Day, highlighting the importance of grassroots democracy and local self-governance. He emphasized that Panchayati Raj institutions play a vital role in empowering rural communities and ensuring inclusive development across the country. At the same time, Gehlot strongly criticised the current administration in Rajasthan for failing to conduct local body elections in a timely manner. He stated that such delays weaken democratic processes at the grassroots level and deprive citizens of their right to elect representatives in local governance bodies.

Delhi HC rejects police plea to cancel Ishrat Jahan's bail

New Delhi

The Delhi High Court on Friday declined to interfere with the bail granted to former Congress councillor Ishrat Jahan in a case linked to the alleged larger conspiracy behind the 2020 North-East Delhi riots. Dismissing an appeal filed by the Delhi Police seeking cancellation of bail, a Division Bench of Justices Navin Chawla and Ravinder Dudeja observed that more than four years have elapsed since Jahan was granted relief, and there were no allegations of breach of conditions imposed by the trial court. Jahan was arrested in February 2020 in connection with a larger conspiracy case linked to the riots, registered under the stringent Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA), the Indian Penal Code, the Arms Act, and the Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act.

BJP Confident of Big Lead in First Phase of West Bengal Polls

The Bharatiya Janata Party has expressed strong confidence in securing a commanding lead in the first phase of the West Bengal Assembly elections, with Union Home Minister Amit Shah projecting a decisive victory.

KOLKATA

Senior leader Amit Shah on Friday stated that the Bharatiya Janata Party is likely to win at least 110 out of the 152 constituencies that went to polls in the first phase held on April 23. He said the estimate was based on an extensive overnight analysis conducted by party leaders and strategists following the conclusion of voting.

Addressing media persons, Shah asserted that the party is on track to form the next government in West Bengal with a clear majority. He thanked voters for their participation and described the electoral process as a shift from fear to hope, suggesting that public sentiment is favoring change.

He also acknowledged the role of security personnel, election officials, and the state police in ensuring a peaceful voting process. According to Shah, the absence of election-related fatalities in the first phase marked a significant improvement compared to past elections in the state.

In a pointed political remark, Shah indicated that the next Chief Minister of West Bengal would be a local leader deeply rooted in the state's culture and language. Referring indirectly to incumbent Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee, he said her successor would be a true Bengali, educated in the Bengali medium and closely connected to the people of the state.

Looking ahead to the second phase of polling scheduled for April 29, Shah said the BJP is targeting victory in at least 77 constituencies out of the 142 going to vote. He acknowledged that the overall contest remains challenging but expressed confidence in the party's growing support base across the state.

The BJP does not make the government; the people choose it, Shah said, adding that he sees a strong wave of support building in favor of his party. As the multi-phase election continues, political observers are closely watching whether these projections translate into actual electoral gains.

Tejashwi Yadav Targets Bihar Govt Over Finances and Political Instability

PATNA

During the heated discussion in the Bihar Legislative Assembly, Tejashwi Yadav accused the administration led by Samrat Choudhary of pushing the state into a severe financial crisis. He claimed that Bihar is burdened with a debt of nearly Rs 4 lakh crore and that the state treasury is under immense pressure, raising doubts about the government's ability to fund development projects.

Tejashwi further alleged that even basic financial obligations, such as pension payments, are facing constraints, indicating deeper structural issues in governance. He questioned how the government could promise growth and infrastructure development when, according to him, existing commitments are already difficult to meet.

Taking aim at the ruling alliance, he dismissed the popular political slogan associated with Nitish Kumar as misleading. He argued that the lack of a clearly declared chief ministerial candidate by the Bharatiya Janata Party has contributed to uncertainty and weakened governance in the state.

Describing Bihar as a political laboratory, Tejashwi pointed to frequent changes in government over recent years as evidence of instability. He claimed that despite long periods in power, the National Democratic Alliance has failed to ensure consistent governance or deliver long-term stability.

In a sharp personal remark, he suggested that internal dissent within the ruling coalition could threaten the Chief Minister's position, hinting at underlying tensions among alliance partners. He also alleged that several leaders in the government were originally from other political parties, contributing to ideological inconsistency.

Citing leaders such as Vijay Kumar Sinha, Vijay Kumar Chaudhary, and Bijendra Prasad Yadav, Tejashwi argued that many members of the ruling camp had switched affiliations over time. He further invoked Lalu Prasad Yadav to suggest that political influences from past alliances continue to shape current leadership dynamics. The remarks intensified the political debate in Bihar, highlighting sharp divisions between the opposition and the ruling coalition as the state navigates both financial and governance challenges.

ACB Intensifies Probe in DA Case of Suspended Andhra Official

VIJAYAWADA

Officials from the Anti-Corruption Bureau Andhra Pradesh on Friday resumed interrogation of Kalingiri Shanti, a suspended Assistant Commissioner, after securing her police custody for two days. She was brought from Vijayawada district jail to the Vijayawada Government General Hospital for a mandatory medical examination before questioning began.

This marks the second round of custodial interrogation after a court previously allowed investigators to question her earlier in April. The agency approached the court again, alleging that Shanti had not cooperated during the initial phase of the probe, prompting fresh custody approval.

Shanti was arrested on April 7 following extensive raids at multiple locations linked to her. She is currently lodged in jail, with her judicial custody extended beyond the initial period. During court proceedings, she also filed a petition seeking permission to meet her young child, with the matter taken up for consideration separately.

According to investigators, searches conducted over nearly 10 hours in areas such as Tadepalli, Undavalli, and Visakhapatnam revealed assets significantly exceeding her known sources of income. The ACB reported that it uncovered properties and valuables worth approximately Rs 1.37 crore.

Among the assets seized were a residential flat in Visakhapatnam, a multi-storey building in Kunchanapalli, substantial quantities of gold and silver ornaments, cash, bank deposits, and vehicles. Officials also collected documents and electronic evidence believed to be linked to the case.

Following the raids, a case was registered under the Prevention of Corruption Act, and Shanti was remanded to judicial custody. Authorities maintain that further questioning is essential to trace the full extent of the alleged financial irregularities and identify any additional links.

The case continues to draw attention as investigators deepen their probe into alleged corruption within the department, with further developments expected after the current round of questioning.

ECI suspends police officer for 'negligence' in duty

Kolkata

The Election Commission of India (ECI) has suspended Hingalganj Police Station Officer-in-Charge Sandeep Sarkar in West Bengal's North 24 Parganas district, said officials on Friday. The order issued on Thursday night sought his immediate removal from duty. However, the reason for this suspension was not clear in the instructions. According to the Commission officials, this order pertains to negligence in duty. State Chief Secretary Dushyant Nariala has been asked to take action as per the Commission's instructions. The Commission has ordered that the responsibility be immediately given to someone else in his place.

Being boatman for PM's ride was a great experience: Gouranga Biswas

KOLKATA

For Gouranga Biswas, a local boatman, Friday morning turned into an unforgettable experience as he ferried Prime Minister Narendra Modi during a brief boat ride. Biswas described the moment as fascinating and unlike anything he had experienced before, as he rowed the boat carrying Narendra Modi. The interaction, though brief, left a lasting impression on the boatman, who said he felt both excited and honored to be part of the Prime Minister's visit.

According to Biswas, the ride was smooth and calm, allowing him to focus on his task despite the high-profile passenger on board. He noted that the presence of security personnel and officials did not distract him from rowing, although the significance of the moment was not lost on him.

Local residents gathered along the banks to catch a glimpse of the Prime Minister, adding to the atmosphere surrounding the visit. For Biswas, who has spent years navigating the waters as part of his daily livelihood, the ride stood out as a rare and proud occasion.

He shared that opportunities like this are once in a lifetime for people in his profession. The experience, he said, will remain a cherished memory, one he would recount to family and friends for years to come.

The Prime Minister's visit, which included the boat ride, drew attention from locals and officials alike, highlighting both the region's cultural significance and the personal stories of individuals like Biswas, whose lives briefly intersect with national events.

'RTC driver's self-immolation is murder by Revanth Reddy govt'

HYDERABAD

Opposition Bharat Rashtra Samithi (BRS) and BJP in Telangana have termed the suicide of a Road Transport Corporation driver as a murder by the state government. They blamed the government for the ongoing strike by the RTC employees over long-pending demands.

Shankar Goud, a driver of RTC, set himself ablaze in Warangal district on Thursday during the protest by striking employees. He succumbed while undergoing treatment at Apollo DRDO Hospital in Hyderabad early Friday morning.

BRS Working President K.T. Rama Rao said that it was not a suicide but a murder committed by the Revanth Reddy government.

Shankar Goud took the extreme step of ending his life solely because he could no longer bear the grave injustice that CM Revanth Reddy has been inflicting upon RTC workers for the past two and a half years, KTR said in a post on 'X'.

He termed as 'utterly heinous act' the denial of permission by authorities to take Shankar Goud's mortal remains to the RTC depot at Narsampet to pay him homage. The minister said Shankar Goud sacrificed his life for the preservation of the RTC and the realisation of his fellow workers' rights. He condemned the arrest of former BRS MLA Peddi Sudarshan Reddy and others for standing in solidarity with Shankar Goud's family and demanded the unconditional release of all individuals who have been illegally arrested across the state.

KTR demanded that the government pay a compensation of Rs one crore to Shankar Goud's family.

Delhi HC closes plea after police assure protection to victim's family

NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court has disposed of a petition filed by the family of a youth killed during Holi-related violence in Uttam Nagar, after noting police assurances of continuous protection. A Bench led by Justice Girish Kathpalia recorded submissions that the local police are closely monitoring the situation and have taken extensive steps to safeguard the family and witnesses.

Authorities informed the court that security has been intensified around the residence, with CCTV surveillance, police pickets in nearby blocks, and a dedicated team stationed outside the house. The court also directed the SHO to share his personal contact number with the petitioners for immediate assistance.

Regarding objectionable social media content, police said over 250 posts had been removed. The court instructed prompt action on any further flagged content, while investigations into alleged threats continue under an ACP-level officer.

POSTAL VOTING DISPUTE

Kerala H Seeks ECI Clarification on Postal Voting Access

KOCHI

The Kerala High Court has directed the Election Commission of India to clarify whether additional arrangements can be made for voters who missed casting their postal ballots, raising concerns about electoral fairness and accessibility.

In a significant development, the Kerala High Court on Friday asked the Election Commission of India to present its position on enabling additional facilities for voters who were unable to use postal ballots in the recently concluded polls. The court scheduled the next hearing for Tuesday, instructing the poll body to submit a detailed response.

The directive comes amid concerns that certain voters, particularly those eligible for postal voting, may have been effectively disenfranchised due to logistical challenges. Postal ballots are a crucial mechanism that allows specific categories of voters, including election duty staff, to exercise their franchise when they cannot vote in person.

The court's intervention follows a petition filed by a state government employee who claimed that his constitutional right to vote was denied despite completing all required procedures for postal voting. The case has drawn broader attention to potential gaps in the system, especially in the context of large-scale elections.

Polling for the state assembly was conducted on April 9, with counting scheduled for May 4. Observers note that postal ballots can be decisive in tightly contested constituencies, making the issue particularly significant. Earlier, the Election Commission had assured the court that all necessary measures would be taken to ensure that polling personnel could cast their votes before reporting for election duties. This assurance came in response to a petition filed by the Kerala NGO Union, which highlighted widespread difficulties faced by government staff deployed during elections.

The union pointed out that under the Conduct of Election Rules 1961, such personnel are entitled to vote through postal ballots. However, delays in distributing ballot papers reportedly prevented many from exercising this right.

The situation was further complicated by a limited voting window between April 1 and April 8, which overlapped with tight duty schedules for election staff. As a result, many eligible voters were unable to cast their ballots in time. With the court now seeking clarity from the Election Commission, the outcome of the case could have wider implications for electoral procedures and the protection of voting rights in future elections.

Vijay hails 85% voter turnout in Tamil Nadu polls

Actor-turned-politician Vijay, chief of Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam, on Friday expressed gratitude to the people of Tamil Nadu for the record-breaking 85 per cent voter turnout in the recently concluded Assembly elections

CHENNAI

In a statement shared on the social media platform X, Vijay said the massive turnout had shattered long-standing perceptions that politics is driven only by powerful or highly experienced individuals. He credited ordinary citizens for redefining the political landscape through their active participation. He described the unprecedented participation as a defining moment in the state's democratic history.

The 2026 Assembly elections, conducted in a single phase across all 234 constituencies, recorded the highest voter turnout in Tamil Nadu since Independence. According to Vijay, the surge in participation was largely driven by youth and women voters, who turned out in large numbers across the state.

Calling the turnout unprecedented, Vijay remarked that Tamil Nadu had never witnessed such high participation before. He described April 23, 2026, as a historic day that demonstrated why elections are often referred to as a festival of democracy. He noted that families, including children, visited polling booths with enthusiasm comparable to festive gatherings, reflecting the vibrancy of the democratic process.

The TVK leader also extended special appreciation to first-time voters and individuals who travelled from other states and even abroad to cast their votes. He emphasized that the commitment shown by citizens highlights the strength of democratic values and deserves widespread recognition.

Vijay further acknowledged the efforts of his party's grassroots workers, including booth agents and administrators, who faced criticism during the campaign. He stated that the overwhelming voter response served as a fitting answer to those who had questioned the political awareness and capability of his party cadre.

Looking ahead, Vijay expressed confidence in his party's prospects as it faces a triangular contest against the ruling Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam-led alliance and the Opposition All India Anna Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam-aligned National Democratic Alliance.

He concluded his statement on an optimistic note, expressing hope for a positive outcome and asserting that victory was within reach.

Choudhary backs NDA leadership, defends prohibition in Bihar Assembly

PATNA

His remarks underscored the ruling alliance's focus on stability, continuity, and social reform amid sharp criticism from the opposition. Addressing the Assembly, Vijay Kumar Choudhary highlighted the political developments following the 2020 Bihar elections, noting that the Bharatiya Janata Party, despite emerging as the numerically stronger party, chose to support Nitish Kumar as Chief Minister. He described this move as a reflection of the maturity and unity within the National Democratic Alliance, emphasizing that the alliance has consistently prioritized collective leadership over individual ambitions.

Choudhary stated that the current support for Samrat Choudhary's leadership follows the same principle, ensuring continuity and stability in governance. He added that the people of Bihar have placed their trust in the NDA for nearly two decades, and the emergence of a new generation of leaders marks a natural progression in the state's political landscape.

During a heated confidence vote debate in the Bihar Legislative Assembly, Deputy Chief Minister Vijay Kumar Choudhary strongly defended the leadership of Samrat Choudhary and reiterated the government's firm commitment to the state's liquor prohibition policy

A significant portion of his speech focused on Bihar's liquor prohibition policy, introduced during Nitish Kumar's tenure. Choudhary made it clear that the law is non-negotiable and will neither be repealed nor diluted. Instead, he asserted that enforcement would be strengthened further to ensure its effectiveness.

Defending the policy against opposition criticism, he argued that ongoing arrests and penalties against violators demonstrate that the law is functioning as intended. He described prohibition not merely as a legal framework but as a broader social reform initiative aimed at improving societal behavior and reducing the harmful effects of alcohol consumption.

The Deputy Chief Minister also took aim at Leader of Opposition Tejashwi Yadav, questioning his current stance on the prohibition law. Choudhary pointed out that Tejashwi Yadav had served as Deputy Chief Minister when the policy was implemented, suggesting that his present criticism reflects inconsistency in the opposition's position.

Despite the government's strong defence, the prohibition law continues to remain a contentious issue in Bihar politics, highlighting a key divide between the ruling alliance and the opposition.

Jolt for Jharkhand govt as SC refuses to stay CBI probe

New Delhi

In a setback to the Jharkhand government, the Supreme Court on Friday refused to stay the Jharkhand High Court's order transferring the probe into an FIR against Enforcement Directorate officials in Ranchi to the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI). A bench of Justices M.M. Sundresh and N. Kotiswar Singh dismissed the state government's plea, which had challenged the High Court's decision and sought a halt to the CBI investigation. Senior advocate Meenakshi Arora, appearing for the state, argued for a stay on the probe, but the apex court declined to grant any relief.

Assam Minister welcomes Gauhati HC rejection of Pawan Khera's bail plea

Guwahati

Assam Minister Pijush Hazarika on Friday welcomed the rejection of anticipatory bail to Congress leader Pawan Khera by the Gauhati High Court, and raised a series of questions over the alleged offences linked to the case. In a strongly worded post on X, Hazarika termed the development significant and alleged that Khera was involved in serious irregularities, including forging land-related documents and misrepresenting facts in a manner that could influence electoral outcomes. The Minister further questioned whether Khera was acting alone or as part of a larger network.

Amid growing concern over the devastating Mundathikode fireworks tragedy linked to the famed Thrissur Pooram, Kerala Devaswoms Minister V. N. Vasavan on Friday announced a detailed investigation into the incident, including whether excessive explosive materials were stored at the site

Probe Ordered into Mundathikode Fireworks Tragedy as Death Toll Rises to 14

THRISSUR

Recovery operations are ongoing, with authorities continuing to find human remains in areas far beyond the blast location. The minister stated that the government will hold comprehensive discussions to prevent such tragedies in the future, including reconsidering the nature of fireworks displays. Emphasizing safety and global standards, Vasavan suggested that fireworks should focus more on visual appeal rather than loud noise, drawing comparisons with international events such as the Olympics. In light of the tragedy, this year's Thrissur Pooram fireworks display has already been cancelled.

Providing an update on casualties, officials confirmed that 14 people have lost their lives in the incident. Initially, 10 victims were identified, with one additional confirmation later. However, the recovery of 29 sets of human remains has complicated the identification process, prompting the use of DNA testing. Four individuals are still reported missing, while four injured persons remain in critical condition. Those with minor injuries have since been discharged.

Authorities revealed that a total of 38 people were present at the site during the explosion, although official records verifying the exact number were destroyed in the blast. The intensity of the explosion is evident from the widespread dispersal of body parts, with search teams discovering remains in distant locations. Portions of a head were found approximately 400 metres away, while parts of a hand were recovered nearly a kilometre from the site.

Officials suspect that stray animals may have contributed to the scattering of remains. Additional fragments have been located in nearby agricultural fields, and search operations are continuing with the assistance of trained cadaver dogs. Police teams, along with local residents, are combing nearby residential areas to ensure no remains are left undiscovered.

To speed up identification, a mobile DNA testing unit has been deployed at Thrissur Medical College, where samples from all recovered remains have been sent for analysis. Authorities expect initial DNA results to arrive soon, which will be crucial in confirming the identities of victims and understanding the full scale of the tragedy.

V-P Radhakrishnan to Attend 35th Convocation of Rajasthan University Today

JAIPUR

Vice-President C.P. Radhakrishnan will visit Jaipur on Saturday to attend the 35th Convocation of the University of Rajasthan and other events, an official said on Friday.

Apart from attending the Convocation, the Vice-President will also attend the 23rd Cancer Survivors' Day, organised by Bhagwan Mahaveer Cancer Hospital and Research Centre in Jaipur, said the official in a statement.

Earlier on Thursday, Vice-President Radhakrishnan chaired the sixth convocation ceremony of AIIMS Rishikesh in Uttarakhand and reminded them that convocation marks not only the culmination of years of disciplined effort and sacrifice but also the beginning of a greater responsibility towards society and the nation.

He urged the graduates to embrace their professional duties with dedication and a sense of purpose.

The Vice-President emphasised that healthcare is a public trust and that medical professionals play a vital role in nation-building. He urged the young graduates to contribute through preventive care, rural outreach, research, and innovation, and to remain guided by the values of empathy, integrity, and service.

Highlighting the spiritual and cultural significance of Rishikesh as a global centre of reflection and healing, and a gateway to the Himalayas, Vice-President Radhakrishnan noted that such a setting adds deeper meaning to the solemnity of the convocation ceremony.

Reflecting on the challenges posed by the pandemic, the Vice-President added that India demonstrated resilience, innovation, and commitment under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

He highlighted India's large-scale vaccination drive, noting that more than 140 crore citizens received free vaccines, ensuring equitable access to healthcare, especially in underserved regions.

He emphasised that Indian scientists developed vaccines not for profit, but for the welfare of humanity.

The Vice-President also underlined India's global responsibility through its 'Vaccine Maitri' initiative, under which vaccines were supplied to more than 100 countries.

He said this initiative reflected the spirit of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam (The World is One Family) and reinforced India's role as a compassionate and responsible global partner.

SC Orders Reinstatement of Gujarat Judicial Officer with Full Benefits

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court has directed the reinstatement of a Gujarat judicial officer with all consequential benefits, after setting aside a disciplinary action that sought to subject her to a de novo inquiry.

A bench of Justices P.S. Narasimha and Alok Aradhe held that the order initiating a fresh inquiry against Chandni Prateek Sharma was contrary to the governing service rules, and consequently quashed the Gujarat High Court's judgment, which had upheld the action.

The respondents are directed to reinstate the appellant and to grant her all consequential benefits, the apex court ordered while allowing the appeal.

Sharma, who joined the Gujarat State Judicial Service in 2012 and was promoted to Senior Civil Judge in 2018, had been placed under suspension in February 2020 following complaints alleging misconduct, including habitual absenteeism and procedural irregularities. An inquiry officer, after examining 21 witnesses, had found only one charge proved while exonerating her of the remaining allegations.

However, the disciplinary authority disagreed with the findings and ordered a de novo inquiry after issuing a show cause notice.

The Gujarat High Court, in its September 26, 2024 judgment, had upheld the decision, observing that the disciplinary authority had recorded reasons for ordering a fresh inquiry.

Setting aside this view, the Supreme Court clarified that Rule 10 of the Gujarat Civil Services (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1971 permits only a further inquiry and not a fresh or de novo inquiry.

The expression 'further inquiry'… does not mean a fresh or a de novo inquiry but only a further inquiry, the Justice Narasimha-led Bench observed.

Holding that the initiation of a de novo inquiry was legally unsustainable, the top court said the Gujarat High Court failed to appreciate the settled legal position on the issue.

Security Guard Killed During Temple Robbery Bid in Ranchi; BJP Slams J'khand Govt

RANCHI

Unidentified criminals ransacked a prominent temple in Ranchi with an attempt to commit robbery, but the watchful security guard foiled their plans at the cost of his life, a senior police official said on Friday.

The 55-year-old security guard was bludgeoned to death after being attacked by the unknown miscreants. The incident happened at Jagannathpur Temple on Thursday night, when the criminals sneaked into the temple with an intent to plunder the temple's wealth.

The police have launched a serious investigation into the entire matter. Ranchi Senior Superintendent of Police (SSP) Rakesh Ranjan told the media that initial investigations found that the miscreants entered the temple through an unlocked gate.

The miscreants stole cash from temple's donation box after attacking the security guard.

The incident is being investigated over both purposes of robbery and murder.

The shocking incident of robbery at the city's prestigious temple has raised fresh alarm over the law and order situation, besides bringing focus back on the security gaps in police administration.

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has questioned the state government over 'temple robbery' in an upscale locality, while holding it accountable for rising crime incidents.

BJP spokesperson Pratul Shahdeo termed the incident as deeply tragic and said that the occurrence of such an incident in such a sensitive area is a matter of grave concern.

Pointing out that the State Assembly is situated less than a kilometre away from the temple, making the vicinity a high-security zone, Shahdeo remarked that if a murder can take place even within a high-security zone and the police fail to catch the culprits, the situation is alarming and appalling.

He appealed to the state government to take measures to prevent Jharkhand from becoming a hotbed of crime.

The deceased temple security guard has been identified as Birsa Munda.

PANCHAYATI RAJ LEGACY

Congress highlights Panchayati Raj legacy

NEW DELHI

The Congress party on Friday commemorated National Panchayati Raj Day by revisiting key legislative milestones that strengthened grassroots democracy in India. Senior party leader and Member of Parliament Jairam Ramesh credited former Prime Ministers Rajiv Gandhi and Manmohan Singh for their pivotal contributions in empowering village-level governance through constitutional and policy reforms.

Speaking on the occasion, Jairam Ramesh emphasized the historic importance of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment, which came into effect in 1993. He attributed the landmark reform entirely to the vision and determination of Rajiv Gandhi, noting that the amendment fundamentally transformed local self-governance in rural India. According to Ramesh, it was Gandhi's persistence that ensured the inclusion of a provision reserving one-third of seats in Panchayati Raj institutions for women, including those from Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe communities.

He pointed out that this move has had a lasting impact, with nearly 32 lakh elected representatives currently serving in Panchayati Raj institutions across the country, of whom around 15 lakh are women. Ramesh also recalled that the original version of the amendment had been introduced in 1989 but failed to pass in the Rajya Sabha due to opposition from the Bharatiya Janata Party.

Highlighting further developments, Ramesh praised the tenure of Manmohan Singh for institutionalizing and strengthening the Panchayati Raj framework. He noted that the Ministry of Panchayati Raj was established in May 2004 under Singh's leadership, marking a significant step toward decentralization. Additionally, he cited the launch of the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) in 2006 as a transformative policy that placed village councils at the center of planning and implementation of rural employment schemes.

Ramesh explained that the 73rd Amendment introduced a comprehensive set of provisions under Articles 243-A to 243-O of the Constitution, granting extensive powers to local governing bodies. These provisions laid the foundation for a robust system of grassroots democracy.

Providing current figures, he stated that India now has approximately 2.6 lakh gram panchayats, over 6,700 intermediate panchayats, and 673 district-level bodies. In a subtle political remark, Ramesh stressed that strengthening local governance institutions remains more urgent than merely expanding the size of the national legislature, underscoring the enduring relevance of Panchayati Raj in India's democratic framework.

No US-Iran peace talks in sight

ISLAMABAD

For nearly a week, Pakistan's capital has been waiting for peace talks between the U.S. and Iran to take place there, and although there is no sign the two sides will meet, large parts of the city remain sealed off by authorities. Key roads leading into Islamabad are shut down and a strict security cordon envelops the administrative centre, the so-called Red Zone. In the adjacent Blue Area, cafes have run out of fruit, markets are deserted and with no service at bus terminals, weekend commuters are struggling to get home. Government officials say the measures are not ending any time soon.

Trump, aides chase vote-rigging claims

WASHINGTON

Late last summer, Kurt Olsen's patience had run out. U.S. President Donald Trump had enlisted Olsen months earlier to seek evidence of foreign interference in U.S. elections and re-investigate Trump's 2020 loss. A prominent election-denier, attorney and former Navy SEAL, Olsen aimed to prove the discredited conspiracy theory that Dominion Voting Systems machines had been infected with malicious code controlled by Venezuela, according to three sources familiar with the matter. But a secret federal investigation of Puerto Rico's Dominion machines had found no trace of hacking after the administration seized the machines in May and directed a cybersecurity contractor to scour them for months.

Pentagon Weighs Measures Against NATO Allies Over Iran War Support

An internal Pentagon communication has revealed that the United States is considering a range of policy options to respond to NATO allies it believes did not adequately support its operations

WASHINGTON

According to a U.S. official familiar with the matter, the internal email outlines potential steps to punish certain members of the NATO for what Washington perceives as insufficient cooperation during the war. Among the measures discussed are suspending Spain from key alliance roles and reassessing the U.S. stance on Britain's claim over the Falkland Islands.

The document reportedly reflects frustration within the Pentagon over some allies' reluctance or refusal to provide access, basing, and overflight rights, commonly referred to as ABO. These permissions are considered critical for conducting military operations, particularly in regions of strategic importance. The official noted that the email described ABO as the absolute baseline expectation within NATO, emphasizing that the issue has been discussed at senior levels within the U.S. defense establishment.One of the more striking options proposed involves sidelining difficult member countries by excluding them from prestigious or influential NATO positions. However, the feasibility of more severe measures remains uncertain. A NATO official clarified that the alliance's founding treaty does not include any provision for suspending member states, raising questions about how such actions could be implemented.The developments come amid heightened tensions following the closure of the Strait of Hormuz, a vital global shipping route disrupted after the outbreak of hostilities on February 28. The United States has urged its allies to contribute naval support to secure the passage, but participation has reportedly been limited.Donald Trump has openly criticized NATO partners for what he views as a lack of commitment, even suggesting that Washington could reconsider its membership in the alliance. In a recent interview, he questioned the value of continued U.S. participation, signaling growing dissatisfaction within his administration.

Despite the strong rhetoric, the Pentagon email does not recommend withdrawing from NATO or closing U.S. military bases in Europe. Instead, it presents a range of strategic options aimed at pressuring allies to align more closely with U.S. military objectives. As discussions continue, the situation underscores evolving strains within the alliance during a period of global instability.

Dozens of Thai opposition figures to go on trial over bid to amend royal insult law

BANGKOK

Thailand's Supreme Court said on Friday that 44 current and former opposition lawmakers will go on trial over an attempt to amend a law that protects the monarchy from criticism, in another blow to the country's progressive movement.The 44 facing trial from June 30 for alleged ethics violations include serving and former lawmakers of the People's Party and its disbanded predecessor Move Forward, who each face the maximum penalty of a lifetime ban from office if found guilty.Hundreds of people have been prosecuted in recent years under Thailand's lese-majeste law, which is among the strictest of its kind in the world, with punishments of up to 15 years in prison for offenders.On the back of massive anti-government, youth-led street protests that included calls for the reform of the monarchy, Move Forward tried to amend the law in parliament in 2021, arguing it had been misused to stifle political opponents.

Thailand's constitution enshrines the king in a position of revered worship and royalists regard the palace as sacrosanct.The liberal agenda of the People's Party and its forerunners created powerful enemies among Thailand's conservative establishment, with the movement on the wrong end of a multiple court rulings, including two party dissolutions.The 44 include People's Party leader Natthaphong Ruengpanyawut, four deputy leaders and former Move Forward leader Pita Limjaroenrat, who is currently serving a 10-year ban from politics.We will pursue our legal fight in the Supreme Court to the fullest extent, in order to defend the legitimacy of the representative mandate in a parliamentary democracy, People's Party leader Natthaphong told a press conference on Friday.

The progressive movement's hugely popularity among young and urban Thais swept Move Forward to victory in the 2023 general election, but it was blocked from forming a government by lawmakers allied with the royalist military.

A court in 2024 ruled that Move Forward's attempt to reform the royal insult law was unconstitutional and undermined the democratic system.

Drone Strike Revives Safety Concerns at Chornobyl Nuclear Site

CHORNOBLY

Denys Khomenko, a senior technical official at the Chornobyl Nuclear Power Plant, recalls the tense moment when a Russian strike drone pierced the protective structure shielding the damaged reactor. Despite the severity of the incident, Khomenko remained composed, emphasizing that calm decision-making is essential in managing such a high-risk environment.

The facility, located about 100 kilometers north of Kyiv, continues to operate under strict safety protocols as it undergoes gradual decommissioning nearly four decades after the catastrophic Chernobyl disaster. The strike narrowly avoided a larger crisis, but it left a visible breach in the massive steel structure encasing reactor four.

Workers have temporarily sealed the hole using a large panel, though the scale of the protective arch—spanning 256 meters—makes repairs complex and time-consuming. The surrounding exclusion zone, while partially stabilized with near-normal radiation levels in some areas, still contains highly contaminated sections, particularly around the destroyed reactor core.

Khomenko explained that repair efforts are severely constrained by radiation exposure limits. Skilled workers such as welders can only operate for short periods—sometimes just minutes—necessitating a larger workforce that is currently difficult to assemble. This challenge underscores the ongoing vulnerability of the site amid continued military activity in Ukraine.

The situation is further complicated by the broader conflict, which has seen repeated air strikes on infrastructure across the country. The Chornobyl site itself was briefly occupied by Russian forces during the early stages of the 2022 invasion, delaying long-term dismantling plans for the damaged reactor.

The February 2025 drone strike triggered a fire that burned for weeks, damaging the outer membrane of the containment structure originally built to secure radioactive debris. Experts warn that the protective system, constructed in 2016 at a cost of approximately 2 billion euros and designed to last a century, now requires urgent repairs to prevent long-term deterioration.

As Ukraine prepares to mark the 40th anniversary of the disaster on April 26, the renewed threat highlights the enduring dangers posed by the site. With wildlife reclaiming nearby abandoned areas such as the ghost town of Pripyat, the contrast between natural recovery and persistent nuclear risk remains stark.

PUTIN RETURNS 'IRON FELIX' DZERZHINSKY TO RUSSIA'S SPY SCHOOL

MOSCOW

President Vladimir Putin has ordered Russia's Federal Security Service's spy academy to carry the name of Iron Felix Dzerzhinsky, the founder of the Soviet secret police and architect of the Red Terror which followed the 1917 revolution.Dzerzhinsky, a Polish noble-turned-revolutionary who helped lay the foundations of the repressive system over which Josef Stalin was to preside, is reviled by dissidents but is a hero to the spies who rule in Putin's Russia.

After the 1989 fall of the Berlin Wall, a cheering crowd toppled a statue of him in the Polish capital Warsaw. As the Soviet Union itself crumbled in 1991, a monument to Dzerzhinsky outside the KGB headquarters on Lubyanka Square in Moscow was felled by jubilant demonstrators.

But Iron Felix is back at the FSB spy school less than two years after making a comeback to the Foreign Intelligence Service (SVR).

In a decree published by the Kremlin this week, Putin ordered the FSB's Academy, which used to be known as the KGB's Higher School, to be known henceforth as the F.E. Dzerzhinsky Academy of the Federal Security Service.

Putin, himself a former KGB lieutenant colonel, said the decision had been taken because of Dzerzhinsky's outstanding contribution to ensuring state security, according to the decree.The KGB's Higher School was formally known as the F.E. Dzerzhinsky Higher School of the KGB from 1962-1993, according to Russian media. Putin was a student there in 1979 and the early 1980s, according to an official biography.The FSB academy in southern Moscow has faculties including foreign languages, information security, counterintelligence, operational support, applied mathematics, and special equipment. For some Russians, the return of Dzerzhinsky is an indicator of the repression they say prevails in wartime Russia - and the extent to which the country has abandoned its post-Soviet pivot towards the West.As one of Vladimir Lenin's most loyal lieutenants, Dzerzhinsky helped establish the revolutionary government using ruthless Leninist tactics: the brutal persecution of opponents - or anyone even suspected of being an opponent.

Northern Japan wildfires prompt mass evacuations as flames spread

TOKYO

Two rapidly spreading forest fires in northern Japan have forced authorities to expand evacuation orders, with more than 3,000 residents urged to leave their homes as firefighters struggle to contain the blazes.The fires, which erupted on afternoon in Iwate Prefecture, continue to move toward nearby residential areas, raising concerns over public safety and property damage. The first blaze began in a mountainous region, where dry conditions and strong winds have contributed to its rapid spread. A second fire broke out roughly two hours later, about 10 kilometers away near Otsuchi, compounding the challenge for emergency responders.Local authorities have issued evacuation orders affecting more than 3,000 people as a precautionary measure. Residents in high-risk zones have been advised to leave immediately, while emergency shelters have been set up to accommodate those displaced. Officials warned that shifting wind patterns could further accelerate the fires, making containment efforts more difficult.Firefighting teams have been deployed across both locations, working continuously to control the flames. However, the rugged terrain and limited accessibility in mountainous areas have hindered operations. Helicopters and ground crews are being used in coordination, but progress has been slow as the fires remain uncontained.

Israel–Lebanon Ceasefire Extended Amid Rising Gulf Tensions

DUBAI

The agreement to prolong the ceasefire was reached during a meeting brokered by Donald Trump, who emphasized that he was willing to wait for what he described as the best deal to bring a lasting end to the ongoing conflict with Iran. The ceasefire extension comes amid continued hostilities between Israel and the Iran-backed armed group Hezbollah, which has been a major obstacle in resolving the wider regional crisis now entering its eighth week.

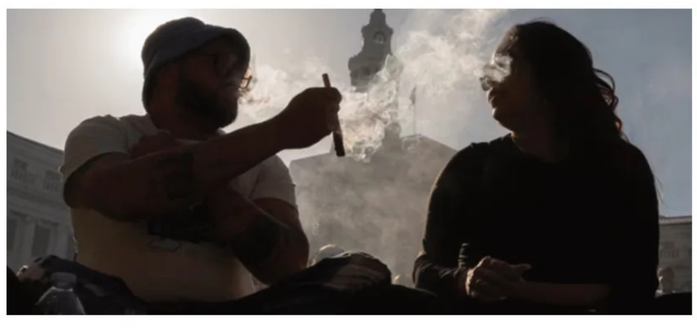
The conflict has also been complicated by Iran's nuclear ambitions and its strategic control over the Strait of Hormuz, a vital shipping corridor through which nearly 20 percent of the world's oil and liquefied natural gas supplies pass. Despite mounting pressure, Trump reiterated that the United States holds a strong position in the ongoing naval standoff and dismissed Iranian threats as exaggerated.

His remarks came shortly after Iran showcased its control over the strait, raising concerns about global energy supplies.

US MARIJUANA POLICY SHIFT

U.S. Eases Marijuana Restrictions in Drug Policy Shift

WASHINGTON



The United States has announced a significant shift in its drug policy, with federal authorities moving to relax restrictions on marijuana and reclassify it as a less dangerous substance, marking one of the most substantial changes in decades.

The U.S. Department of Justice confirmed that it will immediately begin loosening restrictions on certain marijuana products while accelerating efforts to reclassify the drug under federal law. The decision stops short of full legalization but is expected to have wide-ranging implications for the rapidly growing cannabis industry, currently valued at approximately $47 billion.

Under existing rules, marijuana has been categorized alongside highly addictive substances such as heroin. The proposed changes would shift state-regulated medical marijuana products into a less restrictive classification, similar to substances with low to moderate abuse potential, including some prescription painkillers and treatments like ketamine. Products approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration will also fall under the new category.Acting Attorney General Todd Blanche stated that the federal government plans to fast-track broader reforms aimed at reclassifying all uses of cannabis. According to officials, the move is expected to reduce regulatory barriers, facilitate scientific research, and ease financial constraints for businesses operating in the sector.The policy shift follows a directive issued in December by Donald Trump, instructing the Justice Department to review and relax marijuana regulations. The administration argues that aligning federal policy with evolving medical research and state-level practices will improve patient care and provide doctors with more reliable data.

The warning comes as the country prepares for the world's largest sporting event amid a tense political climate and strict new border policies.A coalition of over 120 organizations, including the ACLU and the NAACP, signed the advisory. They warn that visitors could face "arbitrary detention" or "racial profiling" due to an aggressive immigration crackdown by the Trump administration. The groups expressed specific concern for travelers from immigrant communities, racial minorities, and the LGBTQ+ community, calling them the "most vulnerable to serious harm."The advisory suggests that international visitors carry an emergency plan and take precautions, such as securing electronic devices against invasive searches. Rights groups claim that despite the tournament being less than two months away, neither the U.S. government nor FIFA has provided sufficient guarantees for the safety and freedom of travelers. FIFA responded by stating it is "committed to respecting all recognized human rights" and has established a special advisory group to monitor the situation.The 2026 World Cup, hosted across the U.S., Canada, and Mexico, begins in June and features 104 matches. Eleven American cities are set to host games, with the final taking place at MetLife Stadium in New Jersey. Crude oil prices surge above $100 amid tensions

MUMBAI

International crude oil prices rose sharply, gaining up to 2% as geopolitical tensions in the Middle East intensified, despite a reported US ceasefire announcement. Brent crude climbed to around $107 per barrel, while West Texas Intermediate (WTI) rose to about $97.6. Weekly gains have been significant, with Brent up nearly 19% and WTI about 17%, driven largely by supply concerns. Market volatility has been fueled by disruptions near the Strait of Hormuz, a key global oil transit route carrying roughly 20% of global oil trade. Analysts said prices remain cautiously bullish, with resistance near $99–$104.50 and potential upside toward $110, while $95 is seen as key support. Domestic Indian markets saw MCX crude dip slightly even as global prices surged.

India sees cash-digital surge, SBI flags paradox trend

NEW DELHI

India is witnessing a unique financial pattern where both cash usage and digital payments are growing simultaneously, a trend highlighted by State Bank of India (SBI) as a "cash paradox." SBI Research notes that while digital platforms like UPI are expanding rapidly for everyday transactions, cash circulation remains elevated due to informal payments, rural dependence, and precautionary holdings. Rather than replacing cash, digital payments are growing alongside it, creating a hybrid payment ecosystem. The report emphasizes that India's economy continues to balance traditional and modern payment systems. It also suggests strengthening digital infrastructure and financial inclusion to support future growth, including wider adoption of emerging technologies like CBDC across sectors.

Indian markets tumble as crude surges, IT drags indices

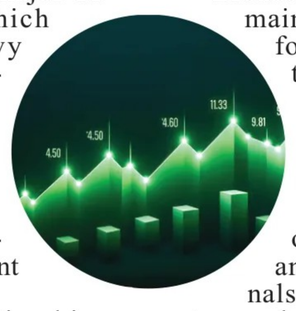
Indian markets fell sharply as crude oil surged above $107 and IT sector weakness dragged indices lower.

MUMBAI

Indian equity markets witnessed a sharp sell-off on Friday, with the BSE Sensex falling 982 points and the Nifty dropping 1.14% as investors reacted to rising global oil prices and weak IT sector performance.

The decline was driven primarily by Brent crude oil prices crossing the $107 per barrel mark, raising concerns over inflation, import costs, and widening fiscal pressures. Higher oil prices typically hurt India, which relies heavily on energy imports, and also weigh on corporate earnings expectations.

Sentiment was further dampened by disappointing quarterly results and cautious outlooks from major IT companies, which triggered heavy selling in technology stocks.



The IT sector has been under pressure due to slowing global demand and uncertainty in client spending.

Foreign institutional investor (FII) outflows also added to market weakness, as global risk aversion increased amid geopolitical tensions in West Asia and volatility in commodity markets.

Broader Asian cues remained weak, reinforcing the negative trend on Dalal Street. Analysts noted that markets are increasingly sensitive to crude oil movements and earnings signals, making short-term volatility likely.

Despite the sharp fall, some experts believe corrections could offer selective buying opportunities in fundamentally strong stocks, provided macro risks such as oil prices and global inflation remain contained.

Overall, the session reflected a risk-off environment, with energy shocks and earnings disappointment combining to push Indian equities lower.

- Crude oil crosses 107 dollars
- IT sector stocks drag markets
- Sensex falls nearly 1000 points
- Nifty drops over one percent
- Foreign investors continue selling pressure

India and US continue BTA talks focusing on market access, digital trade, investment flows, and economic cooperation.

India-US trade talks focus on market access, digital rules

NEW DELHI

India and the United States held fresh discussions in Washington under the proposed Bilateral Trade Agreement (BTA), focusing on market access, digital trade, and investment flows, according to official updates from the Indian side.

The talks are part of ongoing negotiations aimed at building a broader trade framework between India and United States. Both sides are working toward improving access for goods and services while addressing long-standing concerns around tariffs, regulatory barriers, and non-tariff restrictions.

A key area of discussion is market access, where India is seeking improved entry for its exports in the US market, while the US is pushing for easier access in sectors such as agriculture, industrial goods, and technology services. The negotiations also include efforts to reduce technical barriers that restrict cross-border trade.

Digital trade has emerged as another major pillar of the talks. Both countries are exploring rules to govern data flows, e-commerce standards, and digital services, with an emphasis on creating predictable and secure frameworks for technology-driven trade.

Investment facilitation is also being discussed to encourage stronger capital flows between the two economies.

According to reports, the latest round of talks in Washington is seen as constructive, with both sides aiming to narrow differences ahead of a potential interim agreement.

Recent developments suggest momentum in the broader BTA process, with officials targeting enhanced economic cooperation and a long-term goal of significantly expanding bilateral trade.

The discussions come amid a wider push by both governments to deepen strategic economic ties, strengthen supply chains, and align on emerging areas such as technology standards and digital governance, which are expected to play a central role in future trade agreements.

Falling rupee seen as long-term buying opportunity

NEW DELHI

India's Chief Economic Adviser V. Anantha Nageswaran has described the weakening rupee as a potential buying opportunity for long-term investors, calling the currency "fundamentally undervalued" despite near-term pressures.

Nageswaran said the current valuation offers an attractive entry point for those betting on India's long-term growth story.

His remarks come as the rupee continues to face sustained pressure from global economic headwinds.

The currency has been on a losing streak, recently slipping to 94.25 against the US dollar, weighed down by rising crude oil prices.

Brent crude has remained above $100 per barrel amid tensions in the Middle East, increasing import costs and fuelling inflation concerns.

BSE flags deepfake scam targeting investors again

MUMBAI

India's leading stock exchange BSE Limited has issued a fresh warning after a fourth deepfake video surfaced online, falsely showing its Managing Director and CEO Sundararaman Ramamurthy giving stock market tips and investment advice.

The exchange clarified that the video is completely fabricated and malicious, using advanced deepfake technology to mislead viewers with promises of guaranteed and unusually high returns. It also reportedly encourages users to invest in select stocks and join private groups on messaging platforms like WhatsApp and Telegram for "exclusive" tips.

BSE noted that this is the fourth such incident in just four months, pointing to a growing pattern of scammers exploiting the credibility of trusted financial institutions and their leadership. The exchange stressed that neither its CEO nor any official provides stock tips or runs advisory groups on social media or messaging apps.

Reiterating its advisory, BSE urged investors to avoid engaging with or sharing such content and to rely only on official communication channels and intermediaries registered with Securities and Exchange Board of India.

India releases ₹30 bn swap aid to Maldives

MALE

India has approved the first withdrawal of ₹30 billion under the SAARC Currency Swap Framework to support the Maldives' financial stability, according to the Indian High Commission in Male.

The facility is part of the broader currency swap arrangement between the Reserve Bank of India and the Maldivian government, signed during President Mohamed Muizzu's visit to India in October 2024. The framework is designed to provide short-term liquidity support to SAARC member countries during financial stress.

The latest withdrawal follows the earlier $400 million facility availed by the Maldives under the same framework, which matured recently. The Maldivian government confirmed that it has settled the previous obligation, underscoring its commitment to meeting external debt repayments.

India has provided substantial financial support to the Maldives over the years through multiple channels, including currency swaps and emergency credit lines. Since 2012, the RBI has extended over $1.1 billion in swap assistance to the island nation.

The High Commission noted that the swap arrangement has played a key role in maintaining macroeconomic and financial stability in the Maldives, particularly during periods of external pressure.

India also reiterated that the Maldives remains a key partner under its Neighbourhood First policy and Vision MAHASAGAR, highlighting New Delhi's role as a "first responder" in times of economic need.

The assistance comes as the Maldives continues to manage external financing pressures while balancing debt obligations and economic recovery efforts.

AI BANKING DEFENCES

AI threats push banks to build stronger defences

PUNE

Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman has urged Indian banks to significantly strengthen their cybersecurity frameworks, warning that rapidly evolving artificial intelligence (AI) risks could outpace existing safeguards. Speaking after a high-level review with banking leaders and regulators, she stressed that traditional systems "may no longer be sufficient" to deal with emerging AI-driven threats.

The minister called for a more proactive and forward-looking approach, asking banks to adopt advanced, AI-enabled security systems and continuously upgrade their technological infrastructure. She emphasised the need to secure IT systems, protect customer data, and safeguard financial assets from increasingly sophisticated cyberattacks.

- Banks urged strengthen AI cybersecurity defences
- AI threats outpacing traditional safeguards
- Real-time threat intelligence sharing needed
- Advanced AI security systems adoption
- Geopolitical risks adding financial pressure

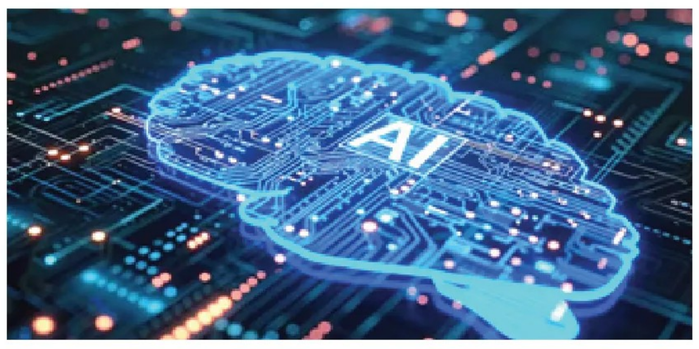
A key focus area is the creation of robust real-time threat intelligence-sharing mechanisms among banks, regulators, and agencies such as CERT-In. This would allow early identification of risks and faster dissemination of information across the financial ecosystem, helping institutions respond quickly to potential breaches.

Concerns have been heightened by global developments in advanced AI models, which experts warn could be misused to exploit software vulnerabilities or enable large-scale financial fraud. The government has already begun assessing these risks through coordinated discussions involving financial and technology stakeholders.

Alongside AI-related risks, Sitharaman also highlighted the broader economic implications of geopolitical tensions in West Asia. She noted that disruptions in key energy routes, particularly around the Strait of Hormuz, are pushing up crude oil prices and adding uncertainty to global markets.

These developments, she indicated, require close monitoring as they can impact inflation, financial stability, and overall economic growth. While India's banking system remains resilient, the combination of technological disruption and geopolitical volatility underscores the need for vigilance and preparedness.

Overall, the government's message is clear: Indian banks must move beyond reactive measures and build adaptive, intelligence-driven defence systems to stay ahead of evolving AI threats, while also remaining alert to global risks that could affect the financial sector.



AI hiring surge spreads beyond India's metro cities

AI hiring in India jumps 59.5%, led by LinkedIn report, as demand spreads beyond metros, boosting opportunities in emerging cities and applied AI skills.

NEW DELHI

AI engineering hiring in India has surged 59.5% year-on-year, outpacing major global economies such as the United States, United Kingdom, France, and Germany, according to a new report by LinkedIn.

The report highlights that while traditional tech hubs like Bengaluru and Hyderabad continue to lead in AI hiring, demand is increasingly spreading to emerging cities such as Vijayawada. Hyderabad recorded a 51% rise in AI engineering roles, while Vijayawada saw a strong 45.5 % increase, reflecting a broader geographic shift.

This growth is being driven by rapid adoption of artificial intelligence across organisations of all sizes. Large enterprises still account for the highest share of AI hiring, backed by investments in infrastructure, governance, and large-scale deployment. However, small and medium-sized businesses are quickly catching up, playing a key role in moving AI from experimentation to practical implementation. Among the fastest-growing skills in demand are AI Agents, AI Productivity tools, and platforms like Azure AI Studio, signalling a shift toward applied, execution-focused capabilities. In sectors such as manufacturing, skills like AI prompting and agent-based systems are becoming increasingly important to enhance employability.

The supply of AI talent is also expanding alongside demand. In manufacturing alone, AI engineering talent has grown fourfold, reaching about 2% of the workforce by 2025, indicating deeper integration of AI into core industrial operations.

Malai Lakshmanan, Head of Engineering at LinkedIn India, noted that engineers should prioritise practical, hands-on AI skills and focus on integrating AI into everyday workflows. As adoption accelerates across industries, professionals who can translate AI from concept to execution are likely to benefit the most from the growing opportunities.

WA tensions accelerate Asia's renewable shift

NEW DELHI

Rising geopolitical tensions in West Asia and disruptions in oil supply could push Asian economies to accelerate their transition toward renewable energy, according to a report by Jefferies. The brokerage highlighted that the ongoing crisis, particularly around the Strait of Hormuz, poses significant risks to energy security, especially for oil-import-dependent nations across Asia.

The Strait of Hormuz is a critical global energy artery, handling nearly 20 percent of the world's oil trade, with a majority of shipments destined for Asian countries. Any prolonged disruption in this route can severely constrain supply, drive up crude prices, and create volatility in energy markets.

Recent developments have already triggered sharp increases in oil prices and disrupted supply chains. Analysts note that such shocks expose the vulnerability of economies heavily reliant on fossil fuel imports, particularly countries like India, China, Japan, and South Korea.

Jefferies believes that sustained supply disruptions could act as a structural catalyst for policy shifts. Governments may increasingly prioritize energy diversification, domestic production, and investment in renewables such as solar, wind, and green hydrogen. The crisis underscores the urgency of reducing dependence on imported crude and enhancing energy resilience.

In addition, higher fossil fuel prices tend to improve the relative competitiveness of renewable energy sources, making clean energy investments more attractive. This could accelerate ongoing energy transition efforts across the region.

While the immediate impact of the crisis is inflationary and poses risks to growth, it may also fast-track long-term structural changes in energy consumption patterns.

The board officially withdrew the permission for star pacer Mustafizur Rahman to play in the Pakistan Super League (PSL). This decision comes after medical experts advised the left arm bowler to undergo immediate scans and rehabilitation for an injury following the recent series against New Zealand.

Mustafizur is not the only player being held back. Rising fast bowler Nahid Rana, who was recently named "Player of the Series" against New Zealand, will also miss the PSL. The board decided to keep Rana at home to ensure he is physically ready for the critical two match Test series against Pakistan starting May 8. By keeping these key bowlers in Bangladesh, the BCB hopes to manage their workload and prevent further injuries.

The news follows Bangladesh's successful 2-1 victory over New Zealand in the One Day International series. With several veteran bowlers now resting or recovering, the national team has introduced several fresh faces for the upcoming T20 matches against New Zealand. Newcomers like Abdul Gaffar Saqlain and Ripon Mondal have been called up to fill the void left by the senior stars.

By prioritizing national duty over international leagues, the BCB is signaling how much they value the upcoming Pakistan Tests.

Fans are disappointed to miss the stars in the PSL, but the board insists that player health must come first to ensure success on the world stage.
